

News

April 11, 2003

More than Farmers' Fare At Local Markets, Easy Gourmet Meals Also At Your Fingertips

Northfield, IL – After a tremendous response from Chicagoans at last season's markets, Here's to the Cook! will be back at area farmers markets this season.

The company features over 25 all-natural sauces, marinades, soups, dressings, and dessert toppings, which founders Barbara Giannetti and Sandra Hartman have developed over the years. These unique, delicious and versatile products take the most difficult and time-consuming steps out of meal preparation and are crafted from such pure, fresh ingredients that consumers can convincingly serve them as homemade. Here's to the Cook! products are perfect for people who appreciate great food but are short on time.

After attending three markets last season, Here's to the Cook! products will be available at the following 11 city and suburban farmers markets: Lincoln Park, Near North (Division and Clark Streets), Roscoe Village, Arlington Heights, Geneva, Grayslake, Hoffman Estates, Lincolnshire, Park Ridge, Wheaton, and Wilmette.

Here's to the Cook! is a creator of specialty foods that celebrates the art of cooking with pure, fresh ingredients. So natural are its products that consumers can convincingly pass them off as their own. Founders Sandra Hartman and Barbara Giannetti create the extensive collection of specialty marinades, sauces, soups, spreads and toppings from recipes honed over years of experience. To learn more visit HeresToTheCook.com.

For more information, contact Barbara Giannetti for Here's to the Cook!, at (847) 912-9412 or Barbara@HeresToTheCook.com.

###

address 276 Riverside Drive, Suite 100, Northfield, Illinois 60093

phone / fax (p) 847-956-6666 / (f) 425-795-2992

email Questions@HeresToTheCook.com